ACTIVITES IN SOUTH AFRICA. FIRST DISPATCHES FROM GENERAL

KITCHENER.

He Succeeds Roberts Because He is the Man Who Can Clear up Things if Anybody Can-Must Have More Men and

London, December 1st (Saturday, 4:30 a. m.)—There is virtually no News from South Africa this morning, but the retirement of Lord Wolsley, the return of Lord Roberts and the appointment of Lord Kitchener to the supreme command, occuring as they do simultaneously, are keenly dis. Despite some misgivings hearty aprroval is generally expressed of Lord Kitchener's appointment. It is felt that if any man can clear up matters in South Africa he is the man. and it is readily admitted that the task before him, though of a different kind, is almost as difficult as that which faced Lord Roberts ten months ago, and is calculated to give the full-as an organizer. The Morning Post hints broadly that the recent demand of Lord Robberts for forces has not been complied with, and insists that Lord Kitchener's hands must not be tied by any lack o men or horses.

est scope to all of Kitchener's talents

It says: From Cape Town come indications of the uccasiness felt. All military posts throughout Cape Colony are being strengthened. Bloomfontein is now prepared for any possible attack. Extra scouts are out and guards watch the streets in the night time. Mines have been laid along the railway. The garrisons on the Orange River drifts are being increased.

At the same time measures are being taken to assist in the restoration of order and prosperity. The Pretoria correspondent of the Daily mail ancounces that "the British are distributing oats and seed potatoes among the surrendered Boer farmers at nominal prices, without which the farms would go untilled for another year." KITCHENER'S FIRST DISPATCH.

London, Dec. 1 .- The Evening Standard reports that a great fight is in progress between General Dewet, near Rouxville, in the southeastern extremity of the Orange Siver Colony, and that the capture of General Dewet is considered lmminent.

The first dispatches from General Kitchener in his capacity of commander-in-chief of the British forces in South Africa are dated Bloemfontein, November 30, and confirm the reports of fighting between General Pilcher and General Dewet as cabled November 29, and adds the latest reportsthat General Knox is in touch with General Dewet's force near Tafelberg, 12 miles north of Bethulie, Orange River Colony, that the Boers attacked Boshof, on November 28, and renewed the attack on November 29, and were repulsed without British loss. General Kitchener also reports that on November 28-29, General Paget was fighting with the Viljoen and Erasmus commands and that he drove the Boers to a position in the vicinity of Reitfontein.

The Brtish casualties were heavy Colonel Lloyd and five other officers were wounded, five men were killed and fifty wounded.

Benkruptcy Court. The case of J. W. Surrett & Co., of Salisbury was heard in the Federal Court Saturday afternoon before his honor Judge Boyd. Surratt & Company are merchants in Salisbusy, and creditors have filed against the firm a petition for involuntary bankruptcy. After hearing the matter, an order was entered adjudicating the firm a bankrupt. The petitioners were represented by L. M. Swink, Esq., of Winston, and the respondents by Hon. Lee S. Overman and R. Lee Wright, Esq., of Salisbury.

No Further Charge of Impertinence. Concord Standard.

We note that the Hon. William J. Bryan, Hon. Chas. A. Towne and Hon. Frederick Dubois were in consuliation last Saturday in Chicago considering the future of the Democratic party. This ought to be sufficient for the reorganization of Democracy YESTERDAY IN THE CHURCHES.

Dr. Rowe's Last Sermon in Which He Feelingly Describes the Rest Laid Up for Those Who are Faithful.

Dr. J. C. Rowe yesterday preached his last sermon in West Market church before leaving for his new charge as Presiding Elder of the Charlotte District. Before beginning the sermon to spoke about Dr. Turrentine, the new pastor. He considered that the church and the new pastor just fit. "He is good enough for you," said Dr. Rowe, "and you are good enough for him. You will find him one of the most lovable men. He is a safe man, and will never fly off at a tangent. He is a student, and when he studies the Bible he is a devout student. He will never teach anything but what may be found there. Love him and let him know that you love him." Dr. Rowe thanked the church very feelingly for what it had done for him during his two years as pastor.

The sermon was about heaven and described very graphically the toils, pains and longings of this world, and the rest and happiness of those who persevere and win heaven. After the sermon Dr. Carraway made a few remarks as, also, did Mr. C. H. Ireland. The whole service was a sweet mixture of sorrow and happiness, one of those rare occasions that one feels blessed in having been present.

Dr. F. H. Wood preached in West Market in the evening. This was also Dr. Wood's last sermon before going to Wadesboro, his new station.

* * * A large congregation attended communion services in the First Presbyterianchurch yesterday morning.

Rev. C. E. Hodgin went to Winston this afternoon to assists Rev. Edmunds Brown in a protracted service at North Winston Presbyterian church.

West Market Epworth League meets tonight at 8 o'clock. Rev. P. J. Carraway will address the meeting. A cordial invitation is axtended the public to come and bring their friends.

The week of prayer and self denial of the Woman's Missionary Society of West Market church ended Sunday with a praise meeting in the Ladies' parlor of the church. Offerings to the amount of $35 60 were brought in. More will be brought later.

A Sunday Runaway and Also a Race on Summit Avenue.

Four of Greensboro's popular young men, Messrs. Sidney Peters, Will Fields, Bob Stockton, and J. M. Mellond, hired one of Vanstory's nicest traps and a pair of horses yesterday and spent the afternoon at Guilford College. On their return while crossing the railway track near the coal chute the horses became frightened and ran into a ditch, upsetting the vehicle and spilling its occupants. Then, finding themselves free, the horses came to town without further delay, leaving the boys to walk. The trap was only sligtly damaged,

People on Summit avenue yesterday afternoon at about five o'clock were treated to a race that had not been down on the program. A couple of fellows, apparently from the country and all the worse for too much whiskey, turned in the avenue from the side road just this side of Mr. Howard Gardner's residence, driving a black horse hitched to a buggy. They stopped as the horse's head came into the avenue to talk to a man on the side walk. Suddenly the driver wheeled the horse into the avenue, threw the reins over its back, gave an Apache yell, and the whole outfit shot up the street like an arrow. The street was full of vehicles and people and they had hard work in dodging the furiously flying horse. The race kept up to the end of the avenue, and the driver then wheeled and came back a portion of the way before finally leaving. HIGH POINT ENJOYS AN UNIQUE EN-TERTAINMENT.

Death of the Infant of Mr. Roper.-Rev. J. R. Scroggs Preached His Last Sermons Yesterday as Paster at High Point-A Lecture on Hypnotism-Parmelee Library Started. Correspondence of The Telegram. High Point, Dec. 2.—The infant child of Mr. A. O. Roper died today, This makes the second sad bereavement in the family recently. A few days ago the father and husband was called upon to bury his wife.

Saturday there was a small fire at the High Point Coffin & Casket Company's plant. The dry kiln gotablaze but timely assistance prevented further damage.

The remains of Mrs. Roland Blair were laid to rest today in Springfield church yard.

Undertaker Joe W. Sechrest goes to Randleman tom rrow to assist in the burial of Mrs. Sam Newlin, who died in that town Saturday night. The deceased is a sister-in-law of Miss Pattie Newlin of this place.

At the Methodist Episcopal church today Rev. J. R. Scroggs, the retiring pastor, preached his farewell sermon as pastor of that church. Rev William Porter, the newly appointed pastor of the Methodist Protestant church at this place, preached his first sermon, as pastor, this morning.

As had been previously advertised, the "hard times soshal," under the auspices of the Young Woman's Chris tian Temperance Union, was held Friday night in the Business Men's Hall The "soshui" prov d a success in every particular. The house was crowed and those present were kept in an uproar of laughter at the "hard times costumes" worn by agood many present, George Burns, as door-keeper, wore a uniform which was a stunner. Gurrey Karns, who won the prize among the boys, did the former to perfection, while Ken Curlee and Walt Bradford represented hoboes to perfection. Misses Ella Burton and Stella Scroggs" won the hearts of all" as being the two best models of old ladies. They, with Misses Bertha Snow and Zillop Smith, merited the vote of thanks bestowed upon them by the judges. A side show, or rather "fountain of knowledge" was run in connection, which proved a drawing card Oysters, ice cream, cake, coffee, etc. was served by the ladies. The receipts were abouf $50. Misses Gertrude and Ethel Diffee, Deborah Tomlinson, Stella Scroggs and others, had the entertainment in charge, and by their aid and presence made success possible to every particular, and deserve much credit. Mr. and Mrs. Philipp Rogers have arrived here after heir honey-moon trip to the home of the groom in South Carolina. Mr. R. C. McBullington, a popular drummer among our citizens, is spending a few days here.

Mr. Alex Woody, civil engineer on the Southern Railway, was a visitor here today.

Mr. H. A. Bringham, of Winston, is here today on a pleasant mission.

Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hamner Prof. MacKnight, of the Hamner School of Science and Healing, will give his second free lecture. Subject, 'Hypnotism, Its Uses and Abuses."

Rev. J. E. Gray, the newly appointed minister to the M. E. Church here will move his family here this week. Rev. J. R. Scroggs and family will vacate the parsonage and move to Greensboro tomorrow or next day.

Mr. Sims, representing the Parmelee University traveling library has succeeded in placing one section-50 volumes-in this town, with promise of one or more sections. The class of books he handles are endorsed by the learned men of the country and the library will prove of benefit to the town.

SAFE ROBBED OF $700.

Robber Enters Stack Bros.'. Store and Swipes the Contents of the Safe.

The grocery establishment of Stack Bros, on Lewis street near the A. & Y. railway crossing, was entered Saturday night and seven hundred and seventy-odd dollars taken from the safe. The money was in a wooden drawer in the safe. This drawer was prized open apparently by a chisel, and the pieces left on the floor. Two checks were in the safe but they were thrown on the floor as were some mortgages in an old pocket book. A A gold band ring was also taken. The cash drawer under the counter was also broken into but it is thought there was nothing in it save a few stamps. The safe had a day lock and it is supposed by Mr. Stack that he did not lock it sufficiently for the night lock to catch. Messrs. Stack did not leave the store Saturday night until nearly twelve o'clock, so the robbery must have taken place early Sunday morning, entrance being gained by way of the back window. A man who sleeps above the storesays he heard no noise during the night.

None Like the South.

Mr. C. H. Williams, who travels for the Huater Manufacturing and Commission Company, returned this morning from a business trip to Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Joseph St. Louis, Louisville, and other places. He says business in that section of the country is at full head. But while he admires that section, he thinks the South will in a reasonable number of years be the richest part of the country. Mr. Wi'liams will go to New York in a few days to remain till Christmas.

Engineer Ordered to Survey Certain Streets

City Enginner Bandy met with the Street Committee Saturday night. He was ordered to survey, for the purpose of getting up estimates and specifications for grading, with a view to let the contracts, for the following streets: Lindsay street from Summit avenue to the railroad, South Ashe, East and West Washington, South Spring, Walker avenue and Mendenhall from Walker avenue to Spring Garden and thence to the Normal College and West Lee.

A Revolutionary Story.

The last issue of the Youths Companion, published in Boston, has a beautiful Revolutionary story with the scene laid in Guilford. Along ment. A very satisfactory settlement with the story, on the front page, is a picture of the Guilford Battle Monument, and the arch leading to the park, the picture having been taken where the railroad crosses the dirt road near the lodge. The Bostonites have learned that there was a battle at Guilford Court House.

C. C. MCLEAN,

THE OPENING OF CONGRESS.

VIGOROUS SESSION BEGAN AT NOON TODAY.

The President's Message Received and Read to House and Senate-It Makes a Large Number of Recommendations. Falls in Line With the Outline of Senator Hanna-Philippines Recommended for the Army.

By Wire to The Telegram. Washington, Nov. 3.—The second session of the fifty sixth congress began at noon today. In the senate, after prayer, and the oath of office had been administered to the new senators, Jonathan H. Dolliver, appointed to succeed Gear, and W. G. Dillingham, elected by the Vermont legislature to succeed Jonathan Ross, appointed to the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Morrill, a committee was appointed to wait upon the President, who sent in his message.

The House was called to order promptly by Speaker Henderson, and the oath of office administered to nine new members elected to fill vacancies. A committee was appointed to wait upon the President and his message was received.

The meesage says that legislation regarding the Philippines should be on generous lines. Lynchings must not be tolerated. We must pay the losses of Americans in the Spanish war. A cable should be built to the Hawaiian islands. An army of 100,000 is needed, 15,000 of whom . should be native Filipinos. There must be a restraint of trusts that are injurious and within Federal jurisdiction. Federal courts should have the power to deal with lynchers of foreigners. We need a new treaty on the Alaskan boundary question. The surplus should be reduced to $30,000,000, followed by further legislation to make the currency responsive to the needs of busi-

The message urges measures designed to promote American shipping, and says that Nicaragua now shows a disposition to deal freely with the canal question, either in the way of negotiations with the United States, or by taking measures to promote the waterway. Overtures for a convention to effect the building of the canal under the auspices of the United States are under consideration. The Sultan has yielded to the American demands. The constitution of Cuba must be made adequate to secure a stable, orderly and free governhas been made of the long pending question of the manufacture of armor dlate, and a reasonable price has been secured. The President approves the recommendation of the secretary of the navy for new vessels and additional men.

The message concludes with a warning against extravagance, and says that we should keep in mind that the foundation of our government is liberty and its superstruction is peace.

P. H. Hanes & Co. Sold Out.

For some time it has been rumored that negotiations were on foot for the sale of the big tobacco factory of P. H. Hanes & Co., at Winston, to the American Tobacco Company. It is reported on the streets here today that the sale has at last been consummated and that the firm's traveling men have been called in by wire.

New Officers Sworn In.

The new county officers were sworn in by Clerk Nelson this morning. 'All qualified except Mr. G. W. Pritchett, surveyor, who did not put in an appearance.

He is the Genius-How Bishop Morrison Pitied His Little Children and Took Their Minds From Material Things-The Brilliancy of Golden October After Nature has Spent Itself in Summer.

BY SALLIE WALKER STOCKARD. Written for The Telegram.

Have you never seen a day so gray and sombre and still that the very grass made mourn in dying? That electric something which men call life is passing. Like the wind it listeth and who shall say whether or whence? Earth and air, and all around is uncharged with an aching numbness. The little gray rabbit hovers to its nest in the cold, tall sedge. With feathers afluff the little birds sit shivering, unafraid of the red-nosed urchin as he hies by blowing his tingling fingers, cold as frog's feet. Nature seems a-dying and the winds are making mourn. Old Nature, like old age, has spent itself in the one great feat of summer. The brilliancy of golden October is too near to be forgotten. The contrast of crimson leaves so lately is harsh against the bleak back ground of naked oaks. Within a week the gold has turned to gray, the green to brown and life to nothingness. The purple hills outlined against their neighboring North Star are lost to us. Cloud, like a curtain, of even tone, is draped about the dome of sky. The sharp lances of sunshine cannot pierce it. Around the eaves the wind blows cold, howling as though its home were ravaged too, and the cave of its dwelling were all broken up. And what wonder. All passes, all the world's a fleeting show. What has become of the nameless something called life which made that blade of grass so fresh and tender? Where is it? what is it? The man who essays to tell knows least about it. What is permanent? The impassable is the impossible in the reign of dame Nature.

This, sweet autumn, proves when the manifold fair things of earth give up the ghost when the rich wine of May time is pressed out and drunk to the dregs in November. What wonder that next May, in the same old way Nature will begin a new brewing.

Life and its issues are so dreadful that few people allow, themselves the trouble to think of it. The service that comes from experience is scarcely ever understood. How many men look at life with a self-inflicted film over their eyes. They have glazed the truth with the spaun of the false until their sense of perceiving is benumbed. This is true with most people. They look through colored lenses, sanguine with selfishness. The pettiness of a little money is the glitter which dazzles. Small thoughts themselves are cramped and crucified along the lines of little action and unnecessary deeds. Have you lived a narrow life, then your power to think is chained, riveted to the rock. A man's consecutive deeds are the best test of his mental power. Do you know by what test you are tried? It is easy to know. It doesn't take your neighbor long to guess it. He feels it by the look of your eye.

Some men are like a tombstone, a glance at whose countenance is uplifting. The alembic of their association harmonizes you, brings to the surface your true nature. Those are our friends. There are friends and friends, you know, like houses and housessome adjacent shanties whose impoverished static relations beg pardon of necessity. There are others, cozy, little comfortable ones; and there are friends like churches, along whose seared walls the blazoned windows pour floods of heaven's golden light which blends with the sound of music. The zigzag jets of light in motion flow into undulations; the one influence upon feeling is not to be explained.

That man is great who can look into human life and understand it, who does not make the worse appear the better, but who sees the tendencies of men; who knows their nature and what they will do under certain stress of circumstances.

Did you notice that Bishop Morrison looked at life with an unfilmed eye? He had passed that way with his eyes open. How like a father he pitied his children—the 200 ministers before him-how he understood the things that pinch, the things that make us sick at heart, but yet do not govern life. Not many men have reached the beatific mountains like he has, as his snowy hair, his freedom of thought and ac- 100 Court Sq. GREENSBORO, N. C.

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking spot, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time." And ours is the place to get the stuff.

Stories in the Youth's Companion.

In the 52 issues of the year The Youth's Companion published more than 200 stories, yet so carefully are they selected that they prove inexhaustible in variety, unfailing in the power to delight. The storeis already in hand for The Companion's 1901 volume show that this feature of the paper will be as strong as ever.

Among the groups of stories will be one of "Old Settlers', Day Tales"stories actually told at some of the gatherings of pioneers in the West There will be four stirring "Tales of Our Inland Seas," picturing the adventures of the sailors on the Great Lakes; and there will also be four "True Tales from the Zoos," told by famous keepers and trainers of wild beasts. And this is only a beginning. We shall be glad to send. Illustrated Announcement of the volume for 1901 with sample copies of the paper free to any address.

All new subscribers will receive The Companion for the remaining weeks of 1900 free from the time of subscription, and then for a full year, 52 weeks, to January 1, 1902; also The Companion's new calendar for 1901, suitable as an ornament for the prettiest room in the house. MONDAY, DECEMBER 3.

MR. THOMPKINS' SUGGESTED BILL

Saturday we spoke of the suggestions made by Mr. D. A. Thompkins as to what his ideas of the legislation to be enacted regarding child labor were. These views have been summarized as follows by the News and Observer:

1. Hours of labor: Sixty-six hours a week, with privilege for males over 15 years of age to work extra time for extra pay. All males and females under 15 are forbidden to work over this limit. Time lost by break-downs or shut-downs at request of operatives, not exceeding five hours in one week, may be made up afterwards.

2. Quit notice: Employes shall give two weeks' notice in writing before quitting. Such notice entitles them to certificate from employer on quitting. Without such certificate they can not be employed at other mills during the year.

3. Child labor and schools: No child under ten can be employed; children under twelve cannot be employed during school-term, nor during August; compulsory education from eight to twelve years is required of children whose parents, brothers or sisters are mill-workers.

4 Indolent vampire parents: A man doing no labor himself but putting his children in a mill and living off their labor shall be adjudged a vagrant and punished by imprisonment. Sickness shall exempt a man. The children's earnings in case of vagrant father shall be paid to the mother; or, if no mother, to the children

4. Factory inspector: A factory inspector shall be appointed by the Governor; term, two years; salary, $1,800; clerk, $1,000, also funds for stationery and traveling expenses. His duty shall be to see the law enforced.

These views are conservative. Their special importance is that they come from Mr. Thompkins who may reasonably be expected to fairly represent the sentiment of the mill owners of the State. If he does, it is clear that they do not oppose reasonable legislation on the subject, and this should be considered a great point gained. If some man who had no connection with the business had come forward with a suggestion, he would have subjected himself to the charge of intermeddling or agitating. But when one so thoroughly identified with all phases of the business proposes a bill which is on the right line, it may be taken as an expression of an earnest desire by those closely interested, to see justice done to those who are most subject to injustice, without at the same time doing wrong to others.

After commenting upon the notice taken by The Telegram last Saturday of Mr. Thompkins' proposed bill, the Charlotte Observer this morning says:

The editorial comments of the Raleigh papers are on much the same line as the foregoing. If we have understood Mr. Thompkins, in several conversations had with him about this matter, he has no special zeal for his own bill but thinks that something approximately like it should be enacted, for the protection of the children and in the interest of the mills, and surely out of his rich experience he is qualified to speak on the subject. We do not think that he desires to be conspicuous in the matter or to obtrude his views upon the subject, but, without assuming to speak for him, we have no doubt that he would be quite glad to elucidate his ideas, if they need elucidation, or give further reasons as to why he entertains them, to any member-elect of the Legislature or other persons who may feel interested.

OThe President evidently indulges his own feelings in his message, but what he says is no warrant of what will be done.

The statement that the situation in South Africa is so serious as likely to give as full scope for General Kitchener's talents as an organizer as it gave Lord Roberts for fighting ten months ago, is deplorable, because it means that there is yet to be done careful and systematic fighting. When Oom Paul landed at Marseilles some days ago and declared that the war would not stop as long as a Boer was alive, he appeared to be talking as one who, unable to do anything else, finds satisfaction in talking. But the great activity since gives color to his

A Score of Persons Killed in a Wreck,

San Antonio, Tex., December 2.--A terrible wreck in which a score of persons were killed and about sixty hurt, occurred on the Mexican Central on Thursday afternoon between Tamanacha and Symon, fifty miles south of Jaumileo. The first news of the disaster reached here today. Edward Riche, a citizen of San Antonio, was at the scene twenty minutes after the engines crashed together.

The place where the wreck occurred is in a valley at the foot of two immense hills. At the time both trains were running 30 miles an hour. One of the trains had on board a construction crew numbering 150 men. The other was a freight train of 55 empty cars. Three engines and about forty cars were piled up thirty feet high. Two American train employes were forced to flee to avoid being lynched. The names of the killed and injured are not obtainable. It is said to be the most serious wreck that has ever occurred in Mexico.

SPIDER TIME IN MANILA.

There is Great Sport for the Pilipino Boys in Making the Insects Fight.

When "spider time" arrives the Filipino boy is happy. He does not know much about marbles, but when spider time arrives, and that is just after the rainy season begins, he knows that he is to have great sport. There are two harmless varieties of spiders that are green and yellow in color that mature in June. They are as large as the common black spider so plentiful in California. The Filipino boy catches these and keeps them secure in a box. A small rod the size and length of a knitting needle is procured. A spider is then placed on the rod. Another boy comes along and he bets a cent that his spider will whip, says the San Jose (Cal.) Mercury. Then the sport be-

The boy who is challenged produces his spider, places it on the rod with the challenger's. Each spider makes a rush for the other and a fierce battle ensues. Sometimes the stronger of the two will wind a web around the other, fastening him to the rod and completely "putting him out of business." The spiders sometimes fight for ten minutes. Nearly every boy has from eight to ten spiders, and they bet all the Filipino pennies they can get on the result of the fight.

MORAL SUASION ON A DOG.

How a Minister Easily Overenme the Animosity of a Belligerent Canine,

A clergyman who went up into the country to preach and lived there a considerable time had occasion in his ministrations to drive regularly over a certain road. At a house on that road lived a big bulldog which always came out and attacked him viciously. The minister stood this for a good while, until finally, as he drove past one winter night in a low sleigh, a means of correcting the dog by moral suasion occurred to him. He stopped his horse in the road before the house. The dog rushed out madly, barking and threatening to jump into the sleigh. The minister sat in his sleigh and paid no attention. The dog retired, returned to the assault, retired again, and a third time rushed out to the attack, but did not touch the man. Then he returned to the doorstep and laid down, apparently utterly crestfallen and disgusted with such a man; and, as he paid no further attention, the minister drove off. After this the minister drove many times past the house, but the dog paid no attention to him, and never seemed to see him at all. He was cured.

MALARIAL MOSQUITO

Points About the Kind That Communicates the Disease.

Facts Ascertained by Scientific Investigation Which May Be of Value to Members of the Human Family.

It has now been pretty well established that the microbes or parasites which are found in the blood of human victims of so-called "malarial" diseases are also found in some mosquitoes. And it appears to have been demonstrated that certain stages of the development of these microbes occur outside the human body. It is yet to be proved that the mosquito affords the only other demiche required for this part of the parasite's career. But just now that insect is the only living creature against which complicity in the crime is proved. Hence just now scores of experts are devoting a great deal of study to the relations which exist between malaria and mosquitoes, says the New York Tribune.

For a time this subject was complicated by a curious contradiction. On the one hand, the microscope revealed the presence of the now well-known parasites in mosquitoes; and mosquitoes that had been infected were made to communicate malaria to human subjects. On the other hand, certain neighborhoods which abounded in mosquitoes were found to be practically free from malaria, and thousands of persons have been bitten by such insects without suffering from malaria. Dr. Manson and Surgeon Major Ross, two prominent British investigators, at length discovered that one kind of mosquito was actively concerned in the business and another kind was not. This, of course, put the matter in an entirely new light, and has led to a more careful observation of the distinguishing marks of mosquitoes.

The mosquito most abundant in some localities is known to the scientists as the "culex pipiens." This genus has now been acquitted of any share in the dissemination of malaria. The parasites are sometimes found in it. but the bite of the culex somehow does not seem to produce malaria in human subjects. That it can and does communicate microbes to birds seems to be partially proved. But so far as men and women are concerned, nothing more than the ordinary and wellknown consequences of a mosquito bite is to be expected from the culex. The misquito which does all the mischief, so far as is known at present, is the anopheles (pronounced "an-offe-leze," with the accent on the second syllable). And it is very desirable to tell them apart. Eventually it may prove that the suppression of the anopheles will rid a region of malaria; but if that were true it would be foolish to waste time, money and energy in fighting the culex.

In a recent address in this city Dr. L.O. Howard, chief entomologist of the agricultural department in Washington, pointed out several differences between the two. First, as to their wings Those of the culex are practically without any color markings. Those of the anopheles bear dark, irregular patches, which are not so well defined as those of a butterfly, but which are easily recognized if the two insects are placed side by side. Then there are their feelers, or "palpi." These are two in number and stick out forward from the head, one on each side of the proboscis. Those of the culex are short and insignificant, while the palpi of the anopheles are nearly as long as the proboscis. Thirdly, the two mosquitoes have a different way of resting on the wall of a room when quiet. The body of the culex is parallel with the wall. whereas that of the anopheles sticks out at an angle. If he is on the ceiling his body will seem to stick out at a right angle. The hum of the culex is a little shriller than the note of the anopheles. The difference in pitch is about equal to four tones of the musical scale. Finally, it appears that the anopheles is chiefly active at night and is given to repose by day. Other points of dissimilarity have been observed in the eggs, larvae and pupae. But these need not be dwelt on here. It would require an expert to detect them. The means already described, and especially the first three, will be found the readiest and most convenient for distinguishing the two insects. And a study of mosquitoes from this point of view is likely to prove a fascinating and profitable pursuit to a good many young people this summer. Ready for a Second Attack. An old negro, evidently in town for the first time, wearing a limp straw hat, knock-kneed trousers, and one suspender, was ambling slowly down the middle of the dusty thoroughfare, gazing in a dazed way at the novel scenes around him. Suddenly one of those great two-horse express wagons dashed around the corner at breakneck speed. The reckless driver saw the old man too late to stop his team, but just as he knocked him down and rode over him, he shouted excitedly: "Look out, there!" Slowly the old negro lifted his dust-covered head from where the wagon had thrown him, and quietly asked: "Is yer comin' back dis er way, boss?"-Memphis

ONE OF THE OTHERS

By Lawrence Boone.

LL HONOR to the brave men who fought their country's battles. Nor is there any danger that they will miss their reward; the whole nation sings their praises. There is, therefore, the less need that I should help swell the chorus. For, after all, there are others. And this is the story of one of the others.

It may sound like a contradiction, but I shall always maintain that Eben Frazer was a hero because he did not enlist. He wanted to enlist. He was urged to enlist. He was ashamed not to enlist. He was exposed to the most seductive and perilous temptation that earth can offer to a slow, big-limbed, big-hearted fellow, such as he wasand is. For he was-and is-in love. And his love bade him go. It was merely duty that bade him stay.

It is often much easier to march in the middle of the procession, even to the cannon's mouth, than to swallow the bitterness of undeserved reproaches and trudge on alone in the rough, homely path of duty. This is no disparagement to Claude Livingstone and the rest, who faced the deadly volleys at El Caney without flinching. But really it is sometimes harder to die nobly. Eben and Claude had long been rivals, and Lola Fanning was the prize to win which Eben toiled and Claude schemed. They hated each other very cordially-and who shall blame them? It is too much to expect Christian charity from lovers.

And Lola was, in truth, an attractive girl. Even I, who did not love her in the least, must concede that. She was tall and fair and graceful. Her eyes were pale blue like a misty sky, and her hair pale golden like a watery sunset. It was not peroxide - though but for the kindness of nature it might have been. She was fond of dress, which is commendable; she was, perhaps, a little overdressed, which was inexcusable. Inborn triviality betraved itself in a superfluity of guards and trimmings; yet her beauty irradiated all her frippery. That her fair head was empty and her soft heart shallow I will not presume to add; for I may be prejudiced. You shall judge for yourself. Yet I thought it much to her credit that of the two suppliants at her shrine she chose Eben. I must own that I was surprised when the engagement was announced.

So she condescendingly wore the ring that he had chopped cordwood to buy; and he was permitted to call twice a week and sit by her side in awed and palpitating reverence, while she chattered away in a fashion that ought to have opened his eyes, but

Meanwhile Claude was "lively" after the manner of his kind. His liveliness was decidealy loud, in speech, in dress. and in action. It seemed to consist v ery largely in dissipating his money; fe 'r he had inherited a large farm. wl lich he promptly mortgaged.

I do wish. Eben, you had a little 'e spunk and spirit," remarked Lola day, as Claude flashed past on a 'r on which it was rumored that trotte lately lost $800.

he had ou mean that you'd like me to "Do y t horses?" exclaimed Eben, and a little shocked. "You surprised . 't afford it if I wanted to. know I can ng to save-"

And I'm tryi. at least drive something "You might old plug of a plow faster than an orrupted, petulantly. horse," she int. of slaving and sav-"What's the good oney coming? If I ing when there's m I'd make a stir in were a man like you But I don't bethe world some way. but chop wood lieve you do anything a'vd hoe potatoes." e to conclude Yet it would be a mistake d. He was that Claude was wholly ba not a sneak; indeed, his bra. ness was startling. His "livelin iberant at least spontaneous; and ex vice, is vitality, even though vented in potentially a virtue.

What Claude most needed was . money and a proper outlet for his re. less, reckless temper. The first of thes conditions was not far to seek. His farm was forfeit; his debts were urgent; his creditors were already beginning their remorseless man-hunt.

Then came the war. What was more natural than that he should enlist? He did more. He raised a company and was chosen captain. Some shook their heads, but he had a strong following, and those who jibed at his follies still rather admired his dash. It was admitted that he had at last done something to redeem himself-and he had. Eben, as you are aware, did not enlist; and thereat everybody seemed surprised. This must have been because he was so big and strong; men who look as if they could pull down mountains get harsh judgments without common equity. Otherwise it could hardly have been ignored that Eben's mother was a helpless invalid, entirely dependent upon his daily wages. And his Cousin Jennie, who cared for her night and day, was also dependent, though far from helpless. This patient, energetic little miss was quite competent to take care of herself, but not to take care of herself and a querulous paralytic too. "You can't go, Eben, dear," she said. "You mustn't think of it. Your mother would simply shut her eyes and die in spite of me." But Lola, a trifle weary, perhaps, of mute Sunday evening worship, was disappointed and indignant. She first taunted her lover with cowardice-"and you big enough to take Havana all by yourself"-and then taxed him with a yet meaner motive.

"It's just your jealousy because you can't be captain," she cried, spitefully. "And you might have been, too, if you'd had a grain of spunk. I've no patience with such a man. You know very well that that red-headed Jen you set such store by could have taken good enough care of old Mrs. Frazer. She isn't exactly a queen, remember, to be waited on every minute, and I guess a little work wouldn't hurt Jen any. And to think that papa drove off poor Claude, that was worth ten of you! Here"-and she struck a tragedy pose with some success-"take back your shabby little ring! I won't wear it for you. And you needn't come to see me any more. I won't have you sneaking round me while better men are fighting for their country," she concluded, with a fine patriotic flourish. It was mere petulance - all this would-be lofty passion. She turned away without a tear, and with no more emotion than if she had been nagging her mother. And the man whose love had thus been flung back in his face, because for him the path of duty did not lead to Cuba, also turned without a tear; but for many weeks, the great, babyhearted fellow went about his work with a heart that sobbed unheard, and a spirit heavy with tears unshed. Jennie tried to comfort him, but without visible results.

Meanwhile great deeds were done at Santiago. The spendthrift debauchee who had volunteered to bury his shame had achieved honor if not glory. Doubtless the rumor of it burned like a branding iron in the silent soul of his rival; for Eben was human, and the sting of Mauser bullets are as nothing to this martyrdom of shame. He dreaded to show himself. He felt that all who saw him questioned his right to breathe American air. But he still chopped wood and hoed potatoes, and fed his mother with the wages of his Eben had almost ceased to visit the village; he never entered its precincts if he could avoid it. One day, however -it was the 2d of September, but as hot as Sahara-he was forced to go to the store, as Jennie could not leave his mother. The grocery was also the post office, and as he came out he met Lola. She tilted her red parasol toward him, and passed without as much as a look. With her was the hero from Santiago, returned on furlough with honorable wounds. His ring was now on her third finger.

Further up the street Eben encountered her dog-a huge wolf-hound that she petted and pampered because it was the fashion. Almost unconsciously, Eben reached out his hand to caress the creature. It shrunk away as if he had been a stranger. There was a yelp and a snap. The snicking teeth barely missed his fingers.

"Her very dog has turned against me," he thought, bitterly.

The animal gave a long-drawn, eerie howl. Then it rolled in the dust, and pawed at its mouth.

"I believe the beast is going mad! And if Lola should attempt to fondle

He was weaponless, and he might be mistaken. But he could at least caution her. He ran down the road: "Lola," he cried, panting, as he overtook her, "Leo, your dog-"

"Are you running away from my dog?" she sneered. And the bystand-

Eben glanced back. The wolf-hound was indeed following. Again sounded that dismal howl. Suddenly, coiling like a snake, the frantic animal buried its fangs in its own flesh. Then, with a savage snarl, it sprang toward them, its distended jaws dripping foam and blood.

There was a crazy rush for the nearest shelter-every man for himself. Even the hero of El Caney forgot his laurels and his lady. Do not reproach him. You and I would have done the same. A mad dog is too much for human nerves and human nature. As for Lola, she spun round, tripped and fell creaming. The rabid beast was upon

L'ut a burly form towered in its path, grim, red and dusty. Even as it leaped, stout hands, no longer slow, gripped the envenomed creature by its very jaws, and wrenched them asunder as Samp son rent the lion. A writhing carcass fe. 1 to the ground; a heavy heel crushed it, ribs and stamped out its quivering life. Then the vanished crowd swarmed back, dropping from trees, emerging from behind fences, hurrying down from verandas. They cheered, they howled, they caught up a new-found hero to bear him in triumph on their shoulders. But they bore him no further than to the village drug store. There the procession suddenly halted -for it was perceived that the rescuing hands were frightfully mangled, and their owner had become unconscious. For several minutes Lola was left lying in the middle of the road. At last her escort bethought himself and picked her up. "I suppose everybody will expect me to marry him now, on account of that miserable dog," she grumbled some weeks later. "And like as not he may run mad himself! I just won't do it."

Strange to say, no one has ever suggested her doing it. She will marry Claude, per original programme, without the smallest protest. That gallant officer will receive the reward of his valor or the punishment of his former sins-as to which public opinion is di-

Eben spent some days in a city hospital, but he did not run mad, however, for the best treatment that money could buy was provided for him by Squire Fanning. Now the townspeople have discovered a new beauty in "that red-headed Jen," and Eben has discovered in her a new love, and a true

CHILD'S DRESS, NO. 8131.

This attractive little dress of shell-pink poplin is prettily trimmed with black velvet and white lace.

It is mounted on a body lining which closes in the center back, and is adjusted with shoulder and under-arm seams. The lining is faced to round yoke depth with lace the full portion being gathered, arranged to outline the yoke, and drawn down straight in the back, forming a slight blouse in front.

The pointed velvet bertha is a stylish addition. It extends out over the sleeves, the uppers of which are tucked about half way down and form puffss from the point where the stitching ceases to the elbows. The lower sleeves of lace are finished with velvet bands at elbows, and

The fullness around the waist in the one-piece skirt is arranged in backward turning tucks, starting from the center front where they form a small box plait. The skirt closes in the back, and a narrow velvet band conceals the seam where it joins the body portion.

Stylish frocks in this mode can be made of Albatross, soft silks, crepeline, Henrietta or cashimere, with silk, applique, ribbon, lace or panne for decoration.

To make the dress for a child eight years will require two yards of forty-four inch material, with three-fourths yard of allover lace, or embroidery, twenty inches wide, and one-half yard of velvet, twenty-two inches wide. The pattern, No. 8131, is cut in sizes for children four, six, eight, ten and twelve years.

HOMES AND FASHIONS.

A beautiful definition of home was given by Lady Aberdeen in the address delivered by her before the recent meeting at Toronto of the National Council of Women. "What is that indefinable something that makes a home; that reveals itself in the books and pictures, in the preparation for a guest in the tones of the children, in the expression of husband and wife? We cannot describe it, but we recognize it at once when it is present, and no house can be truly a home without, some measure of it. We do not need just houses where we can eat heartily and sleep well, but we want homes, full of rest and peace and beauty and refreshment."

Scrofula

THE OFFSPRING OF HEREDITARY BLOOD TAINT.

Scrofula is but a modified form of Blood who is tainted by either will see in the child the same disease manifesting it salf in child the same disease manifesting itself in the form of swollen glands of the neck and throat, catarrh, weak eyes, offensive sores and abscesses and oftentimes white swelling—sure signs of Scrofula. There may be no external signs for a long time, for the disease develops slowly in some cases, but the poison is in the blood and will break out at the first favorable opportunity. S. S. S. cures this wasting, destructive disease by first purifying and building up the blood and stimulating and invigorating the whole system.

J. M. Seals, 115 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn., says: "Ten years ago my daughter fell and cut her forehead. From this wound the glands on the side of her face became swollen and bursted. Some of the best doctors here and elsewhere attended her without any benefit. We decided to try S. S. S., and a few bottles cured her entirely."

makes new and pure blood to nourish and strengthen the body, and is a positive and safe cure for Scrofula. It overcomes all forms of blood poison, whether inherited or acquired, and no remedy so thoroughly and effectively cleanses the blood. If you have any blood trouble, or your child has inherited some blood taint, take S. S. S. and get the blood in good condition and prevent the disease doing further damage.

GUY WOODWARD AND HIS POP-ULAR COMPANY.

Tonight Guy Woodward and his popular company will commence an engagement of one week at the Academy of Music. It is needless to predict that this organization will be greeted with the most liberal patronage during their stay in the city, as Guy Woodward has for the past five years included Greensboro in his annual tour, and with each visit his popularity and personal magnetism added new friends and countless admirers to his credit. Tonight's bill will be the "Paymaster," a four act comedy drama, with plenty of good pathos, intermingled with stirring dramatic climaxes and an abundance of "good" comedy, which role is in the hands of Mr. Woodward, which means plenty of laughs. The entire company is admirably caste, and the production has been repeatedly spoken of as one of

As has been a time honored custom with the Woodward-Warren Company, no plays that were used on previous tours will be presented, but an entire new list of well known comedies and dramas will be presented.
